WILDLIFE

Alligators

Alligators are common in lakes, ponds, rivers, streams and swampy areas along the coastal plain of South Carolina, including right here in Seabrook Island. Below are some alligator safety tips from the South Carolina Department of Natural Resources (SCDNR):

- Never approach an alligator of any size. Keep your distance and leave alligators alone! Alligators can move in quick bursts over short distances but normally do not try to chase after people. If an alligator hisses, it’s a warning that you are too close.

- Do not feed alligators. Not only is it illegal, it also teaches alligators to associate people with food. This can cause alligators to lose their natural fear of humans and create a greater risk to the community. If you see someone feeding alligators, please contact SCDNR at (800) 922-5431.

- Avoid swimming in areas known to harbor alligators. Don’t swim or play in the water where alligators may be present, especially between dusk and dawn. Alligators are normally more active during the night.

- Keep pets out of the water if alligators are present. Pets are more susceptible to being attacked as they more closely resemble an alligator’s normal prey. Do not swim with your pet as it can attract the attention of alligators.

- Never attempt to capture or move an alligator by yourself. If an alligator is in a place where it cannot reasonably be expected to get back to the water without posing a risk to itself or to others or is in a location that presents an immediate hazard, such as a road, pool, parking lot, etc., contact SCDNR at (800) 922-5431.

- If bitten seek immediate medical attention. Even minor alligator bites can result in serious infections.

Dolphins

Did you know that Captain Sams Inlet, which separates Seabrook and Kiawah Islands, is one of the few places in the United States where residents and visitors can regularly see Atlantic Bottlenose Dolphins engage in a unique hunting behavior called “strand feeding?”

Strand feeding occurs when dolphins work together in small groups to herd fish towards the shallow water before creating a powerful wave to push the fish onto the shore. The dolphins then lunge their bodies out of the water and onto the sand to eat the fish. Strand feeding is most likely to occur in Captain Sams Inlet 2 hours before to 2 hours after low tide.

Maintaining sufficient space for dolphins to strand feed is important to ensure that this unique behavior is not disrupted. Below are some recommendations from the Lowcountry Marine Mammal Network (LMMN) for safely observing dolphins on Seabrook Island:

When viewing dolphins from the beach:

- Stay at least 15 yards from the water line.
- Do not swim with, chase, tease, touch or grab dolphins.
- Do not feed dolphins. It’s not only harmful; it’s also illegal!
- Keep quiet while dolphins are hunting.

When viewing dolphins from a boat, kayak or other watercraft:

- Remain at least 50 yards away from dolphins (about 1/2 a football field).
- Operate vessels at no-wake speed.
- Do not enter the water, swim with, chase, tease, touch or grab the dolphins.
- Do not touch, feed or encourage dolphins to approach you or your boat.
- If dolphins approach you, do not chase, follow or encircle them.
- Never approach or separate a mother and her calf.
- Keep quiet while dolphins are hunting.

Sea Turtles

There are four types of sea turtles commonly found along the coast of South Carolina:

- Loggerhead (most common);
- Kemp’s Ridleys;
- Green Sea Turtles; and
- Leatherbacks

The annual sea turtle nesting season runs from May through August, with hatchlings emerging in July through October. Below are some helpful tips to help protect nesting sea turtles and their hatchlings on the beaches of Seabrook Island:

- Never disturb a sea turtle. Whether crawling to or from the ocean or actively nesting, sea turtles should be observed from a distance. Do not attempt to touch or ride a sea turtle.

- Avoid artificial light from dusk until dawn:
  o Do not shine lights, such as flashlights or flash photography, on or near sea turtles.
  o Turn out all lights which are visible from the beach between May and October.
  o Turn off all outdoor and deck lighting to reduce disorientation for nesting adults and hatchlings.
  o Close blinds and drapes on windows that face the beach or ocean.

- Fill in holes on the beach at the end of each day. Adults and hatchlings can become easily trapped inside holes on the beach.

- Do not leave beach chairs, tents and other equipment on the beach overnight.

- Report dead and injured sea turtles. Call SCDNR at (800) 922-5431.

- Ask a Turtle Patrol Volunteer. Seabrook Island Turtle Patrol volunteers are regularly on the beach to interact with and educate visitors. Look for a SITP volunteer while on the beach.

Shorebirds

The beaches of Seabrook Island have been designated as a critical habitat for several threatened and endangered species of shorebirds, including:

- Red Knots;
- Piping Plovers;
- Wilson’s Plovers; and
- Least Terns.

Human disturbance is harmful to shorebirds; their survival depends on you! Below are some helpful tips from the Seabrook Island Birders (SIB) on ways you can help protect shorebirds on the beaches of Seabrook Island:

- Give the birds space. Resting and feeding are critical to the survival of migratory and wintering bird populations. If birds run or fly when you approach, you’re too close!

- Keep out of posted areas and dunes. Birds may be nesting. Disturbance of nests may result in the loss of eggs and chicks.

- Be a bird-friendly dog owner. Keep dogs on a leash when near bird flocks. Don’t allow dogs to chase birds; it stresses the birds & saps their energy for migration. Follow the town’s Beach Rules for Pets ordinance.

- Ask a Shorebird Steward: SIB volunteers are regularly on the beach to interact with visitors and educate them on our local shorebird populations. Look for a SIB Shorebird Steward while on the beach.

OTHER INFORMATION

Seabrook Island Beach Patrol

Personnel from Seabrook Island Beach Patrol are on the beach daily from April 1st to September 30th. All Beach Patrol personnel are certified lifeguards and receive extensive training. For assistance with a non-life-threatening situation, please call (843) 718-6083. For police, fire and medical emergencies, always DIAL 911.

Take the Scenic Route

A vacation should be about rest and relaxation, so why drive when you can get there safely on foot or by bike? The town maintains a 10-foot mixed-use pathway along the outbound lane of Seabrook Island Road, giving visitors the option to walk or ride a bike to places like Bohicket Marina and Freshfields Village.

Emergency Resources

Given its location, the Town of Seabrook Island is susceptible to a variety of natural disasters, including hurricanes, tornadoes, flooding and earthquakes. In the unlikely event that your vacation is impacted by a disaster, please monitor the following official sources:

Help Reduce Plastic Pollution

In July of 2019, Seabrook Island Town Council approved an ordinance prohibiting the distribution of single-use plastic carryout bags, plastic straws, and polystyrene coolers, cups and other food containers by business establishments in the town. While this ordinance does not prohibit individuals from using single-use plastic items, the town encourages visitors to use environmentally friendly alternatives whenever possible to help reduce the long-lasting impacts of plastic pollution.

Don’t Miss the Dolphins!

Hoping to catch a glimpse of our famous strand feeding dolphins? Head out to Boardwalk #1, hang a left at the beach and walk all the way to Captain Sams Inlet. The dolphins are most active 2 hours before to 2 hours after low tide.
